

WITH THE FARMERS

Farm Bureau Official Information

LOCAL SHIPPERS HOLD MEETINGS

Many farmers of Rock county attended the Shipping association meetings held under the auspices of the Farm Bureau last week at Footville, Janesville, Milton Junction, and Janesville. While the attendance at these meetings was not large, those present were enthusiastic in their belief that the shipping associations provide the most economical and best means of marketing livestock for the man who has less than a car load to ship at one time. These associations which had been in operation during the past year reported success in operation. The association at Milton Junction was reorganized and will soon start shipping for its members.

Producers Represented. The principal speakers at these meetings were A. E. Adams, field man for the Chicago Producers Commission association. The company he represents is the Co-operative Commission company, through which 75,000 farmer members are attempting to obtain better prices for their stock at a reduced cost.

"The Chicago Producers' Commission association is one of the 14 producer owned and controlled livestock commission associations, joined together under the national organization known as the National Livestock Producers' association. It is controlled by the member shippers and is controlled by a board of directors elected by them," says Mr. Adams. "The main purpose of the organization is to improve the service rendered to the shippers, to effect every possible economy in marketing and to place the producer in a position whereby he may better stand up to prices obtained which will prevent violent price fluctuations and result in a more orderly system of marketing."

Success Reported. "The growth of the business, which is 75 percent larger this year than last year, shows that the members have been well pleased with the service which their own company has given them on their shipments," says Mr. Adams. "A large and capable sales force is maintained in all departments. Plenty of yard space is available to handle the cattle, hogs, and sheep that may be consigned to them."

The saving in commissions was shown by a refund to shippers of 30 percent of all the commission charged and made at the close of the fiscal year, July 1, 1923. This refund averaged $5.35 per car and totaled over $69,000.

"T. B." EXHIBIT TO MAKE WIS. FAIRS
A novel exhibit on tuberculosis will be shown at a series of Wisconsin fairs the coming season by Dr. Arthur J. Killian, Wisconsin livestock commissioner.

FARM MEETINGS

Saturday, May 17—Meeting of Rock County Poultry association to hear marketing lectures, court house, 1:30 p. m.
Saturday, May 17—Feeding trial demonstration, Wisconsin College of Agriculture, Madison.
June 10 and 11—Fair on the Farm, exhibit of John M. Kelley, fair grounds, Janesville.

Having headquarters in Janesville, the Janesville box with emphasis of condemned meat showing the tuberculosis lesions will form the main part of the exhibit.
In addition there will be slides, motion pictures, and charts showing the ravages of tuberculosis into the livestock industry. The box exhibit was taken to many fairs last year and attracted great attention. Farmers having opportunity of seeing exactly the effect on the tuberculosis on cattle, swine and poultry. It is expected that the exhibit will be shown at both fairs in Rock county.

RECORD MEMBERSHIP FOR CLUB MEMBERS

A membership in the National Duroc Record association was taken out this week through the Rock county association for all pig club members having Duroc blood. The club members will save half in the registration fee and all pedigree applications must be made through the Rock county Duroc Pig Club.

Pedigree papers will be furnished to all pig club members by Jack C. Nibbel, secretary, and inspections made for the registration of the new litters. It is planned to hold the spring delivery day for the pig club early in June. There will be around 120 new members to draw gifts to be selected from the club litters this spring.

Under the contract, the senior partner, a city man, is to select one gift of the litter to be redistributed for club work. Then the mother sow and balance of the litter becomes the property of the club member for all time.

INJUNCTION BLOCKS DELIVERY OF TOBACCO

In the Dane county circuit court Judge E. Ray Stevens issued a permanent injunction against Louis Midtun, Stoughton, blocking the delivery of 82 bundles under contract in the Northern Wisconsin Co-operative Tobacco pool to an agency outside the pool. The pool charged that the mortgagee, W. J. Richardson, started foreclosing on the next day after a $500 loan to Midtun, and within 15 days sold 7,000 pounds of the crop to McIntosh Brothers, Livestock, at a price of 10 cents. The delivery of 82 bundles remaining on the farm was blocked by the injunction order, according to the statements by the pool officials.

CARE SAVES HURTS USING EXPLOSIVES

Reduction in Blasting Accidents Will Result if Farmers Follow Rules.

"Familiarity breeds contempt," even in the handling of explosives. A. Rowlands, land clearing specialist of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, cautions farmers against carelessness in agricultural blasting work. He fears that the use of immense quantities of explosives by tens of thousands of farmers may lead to increasing familiarity and careless practices. The man who always respects explosives seldom has accidents, but indifference and carelessness are responsible for innumerable accidents.

Hangfires Are Fatal.
One of the greatest causes of accidents is "hang-fire." This term is commonly used by dynamiters in referring to a charge which fails to go off at the proper time after the fuse is lighted, but later does explode. If the charge fails to explode at all, it is called a misfire.

Some blasters call hang-fires "premature explosions" when as a matter of fact the reverse is true. The explosion is actually delayed because of the faulty methods of priming or lighting and seldom because of defective materials, according to Rowlands.

How It Happens.
The story of "how it happened" usually runs something like this, as told by Rowlands: "He lit the fuse and went out of danger. After waiting a few minutes the charge did not explode so becoming impatient, he went back to investigate with the charge still hanging fire. While he was close to the stump the charge exploded. He forgot that in handling the fuse it may have been bent, kinked, pinched, or wet. This might stop the burning of the powder at some point in the fuse but the fire might continue to smoulder and burn in the cotton covering of the fuse until it finally reached new powder. 'This may happen in the course of a few minutes after the fuse is lit or it may take several hours. The only safe thing to do is to keep away and not investigate until TOMORROW. By that time the hang-fire will be a misfire, which can be carefully removed by digging out the soil down to the charge. This should be done very carefully using only the hands or a piece of wood until the cap is removed. It is best for a man to work alone and to take plenty of time. When the charge is reached, the cap can be taken out and a new primer placed if the explosive is still dry.'"

800 Workers Hired for Beet Fields by Local Plant

Eight hundred persons from Michigan and Nebraska and from the cities of St. Paul, Milwaukee, Chicago,oline and Rock Island have been brought into southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois to work in the beet fields harvesting beets for the Rock County Sugar company.

On account of wet weather only about 50 per cent of the beets have been planted, and this will occupy the crews until about June 1. The acreage for the local plant is close to 1,000.

Buying Live Stock in Wheat States.

The northwest has been following the advice of the president to a far greater degree than was anticipated in diversification of crops for the coming year and there is likely to be a considerable reduction in the wheat acreage. Demands for loans through the Agricultural Credit Corporation, backed by the U. S. War Finance Board, have increased in such volume that it is generally noticeable, especially in North Dakota.
There will be a distribution of a million dollars for the purchase of livestock in Montana, North and South Dakota and Minnesota. This is a start in the right direction. The increase in dairy cows is reported in all but two counties in North Dakota.

These states are passing through the changes which came to Wisconsin following the Civil war and which resulted in removing this state from the wheat growing list to the great position it now holds in agriculture.

It was a hard struggle and the mortgages and tax sales of fifty years ago tell the story better than words. At this time when there is a downward trend in industry the position of agriculture will eventually be recognized as improving.

From all we can hear, Gov. Blaine's tax ideas are sound. Mostly sound.

What Is a White Man?

An interesting case is presented in the federal court at Portland, Oregon, wherein the citizenship of an Armenian is held in question. It matters not so much what the lower court decides, as the case, no matter what the verdict, will be carried to the supreme court of the United States. The action is for the cancellation of the citizenship of an Armenian on the ground that he is not a white person within the interpretation of the act of 1790 wherein eligibility for citizenship was confined to white persons alone except in the case of certain Africans.

The case hinges on ethnology and anthropology.
It is being held that the Armenian is an Asiatic and not of any group recognized as white. Not all Aryans, progenitors of the Caucasian races, are recognized as white since among the Aryans are the Hindus. A decision against the Armenian would mean the exclusion of many thousands of other Asiatics who come from the same parent root. Citizenship and property rights of 10,000 Armenians in the United States who have always been met on an equal footing as whites, are at stake. It will be a case of importance to every section of the United States when finally decided.

Ethnologically the Armenian is an Aryan. All the races of Europe are of the Indo-European or Indo-Germanic stock except the Magyars, the Basques of the Pyrenees, and the Finns of Lapland. Yet we admit all these peoples to citizenship. It cannot be argued that they are not eligible because they are of Semite origin, because we have never drawn that statutory line against Semites.
It is true that the several conquests of Armenia by Parthian hordes, Turks, Arabs, and other Asiatic races, have vitiated the original Aryan stock, but how much cannot be determined with exactness. In America the Armenian has never been considered as an Eurasian. It may be that the supreme court of the United States will settle the case finally by determining once and for all,
"what is a white man?"

While the reds in Germany were very blue over the result the reds in France are simply crimson with joy.

Ireland and Politics.

Less and less the interest in Ireland is in politics. Attention is being given to the economic troubles and problems which as political disturbance is falling away. Ireland has one problem which we are facing over here and have faced for some time, in fact always will confront us until we revamp the economic system—that of agriculture.

In Ireland the agricultural depression affects the commercial side even more than it does in America for agriculture is the chiefest of its industries. Plans are being proposed whereby the government will attempt the establishment of new hydroelectric industrial centers. Rivers which have been celebrated in song and story are to be dammed and made to furnish power to new plants.

This is but one evidence of the changed Ireland. There is more and more a desire to attain ends through constitutional methods rather than to arm a band of desperate followers and take to the hills in revolt and outlaws. One effect of this attitude is to bring into the Dail a regularly organized opposition party. The Irish Statesman, a strong supporter of the Free State government, looks upon this as a beneficial thing for the people since it will make the majority more careful in its administration. That has been found to be true in every state governed by elected bodies. A strong and active minority is ever a great incentive for better government. As these matters are being straightened out, Ireland comes nearer now being a peaceful and orderly government than ever in the last hundred years or more.

The death of Sun Yat Sen comes at a time when he had less and less power in the government and

NEW ERA FOR THE FARMERS

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—Will the modern chemistry revolutionize farming? The chemist in his laboratory, patiently studying mysteries concerning atoms, vitamins, and hydrogen-ion, may seem to be in an entirely different world from the farmer at the plough. But some of the present research is so fundamental, and the possibilities of applying it are so tremendous, that the farmer is on the verge of a new era—at least so the situation appears when an agricultural chemist explains the latest problems and discoveries.

The new agricultural chemistry should be interesting even to the city dweller who is neither a scientist nor a farmer. What up-to-date individual could fail to get a thrill from the fact that a plant vitamin has been isolated? Three famous vitamins, which are so important to the health of human beings and animals, are a familiar topic of conversation. Few people can talk as glibly of plant vitamins.

Bios is the first plant vitamin to be discovered.
Plants, like animals, require water, and food.
The plants obtain food from the soil. If vitamins are lacking, the plant's growth may be stunted, just as the growth of a human being is affected in similar circumstances.

Some time ago, an Englishman reported that it was possible to take peas, which is not a very complete plant food, and by treating it with bacteria make it into an efficient plant food. Unfortunately, no one else was ever able to duplicate the Englishman's remarkable results with peas. But yeast contains a growth-producing principle, called bios, which has the powers that the Englishman claimed for peas. A Belgian discovered the substance, and now chemists are busily studying it.

A great deal is heard about the importance of isolating a vitamin. Recently, a scientist has been successful in isolating the substance bios.
No scientist has yet isolated any vitamin in sufficiently satisfactory condition to make analysis possible. When bios is analyzed chemists may be able to take a chemical formula and produce the same substance out of their laboratory bottles.
Whether the plant vitamin in yeast will promote growth of other plants is not yet known. If it is like animal vitamins, it can be fed to the plants in some way. In that event knowing how to produce bios in the laboratory in large quantities would be extremely useful and practical.

There may be other plant vitamins besides the one, which are necessary to growth and vigor. It may in time be possible to see that plants get a balanced ration, and stunted plants yielding poor grade fruit may become as rare as they should be.

Some of the most remarkable work now going on in chemical laboratories is the result of the discovery of hydrogen-ion concentrations. This is a technical term and a technical subject, but it is the basic factor in so many modern theories that it threatens to become as much of a catch word as vitamins or atoms. Insulin could not have been obtained from the glands of slaughtered hogs until the significance of hydrogen-ion was understood.

Hydrogen-ion means electrified atoms of hydrogen. The number of atoms charged varies, and the chemist speaks of the different variations as ionic concentrations. He says that a vitamin or other substance, has its hydrogen-ion concentration at which certain processes take place. Thus gelatine swells in water only at certain concentrations.

All this is closely connected with the farmer and his land. Hydrogen-ion has an acid taste.
That is its peculiar feature. All acids taste alike, regardless of what their composition may be, due to hydrogen-ion. When the farmer times his soil he is adding an alkali which will neutralize the acid in the soil. If he may not know anything about chemistry, but he is decreasing the hydrogen-ion concentration of his soil.

What farmers now achieve by using tons of lime may some day be more economically brought about by studying the hydrogen-ion of every soil and determining the hydrogen-ion concentration of different crops. When the farmer will add hydrogen-ion to soils that require it, and he will select his crops for different fields on a more scientific basis than at present.

Bios and hydrogen-ion are examples of what the modern laboratory is studying. Discoveries sometimes seem far apart and progress seems slow, but it is only because the scientist feels his way slowly and announces his results when he is sure of them. The chemist's observations on plant life are generally done in triplicate. That is the experimental work is completely and carefully done, and then the process is repeated twice.
A man who observes and does his work as a scientist, adds nothing at all to the world's knowledge, but he is encouraging or discouraging results may have been due to factors which he does not understand or to an accidental situation which he cannot reproduce.

The chemist working under controlled conditions with specialized equipment seems like a strictly modern type of individual. His ideas of applying some of the chemical theories to raising corn and beans seem even ultra modern. Yet agricultural chemistry itself is far from new. In this country it goes back to an early period of colonial history.

At the recent meeting of the American Chemical Society, C. A. Browne, of the Department of Agriculture, sketched the history of agricultural chemistry in America from 1653 to 1852. Dr.
Browne finds that make was the subject of the first study of the sort in America. Then, in 1668, the Rev. John Clayton presented a scientific paper entitled, "Observations in Virginia." The Virginia scientist was, unknowingly, laying the foundation of soil chemistry. In language suggestive of the nineteenth century, he pointed out:

"The same sort of soil in different earths will produce tobacco, much different, as to goodness
..... It had not my microscope, tools to grind glasses, etc., been cast away with my other things, I had made some critical enquiries into their several natures. I would have examined what proportions of salts all the sorts of earths had afforded, how water, impregnated with their salts, would have changed with infusing galls, how with syrup of violets, and how they would have precipitated mercury, or the like, and so far forth as I had been able, examine them by the several trials of fire."

This sort of record shows that even that far back all farmers were not satisfied with superstitious signs. An interest in chemistry of the plant world existed. But until the middle of the nineteenth century the interest was almost entirely confined to what was obviously practical research.

Inevitably must have been defeated and afterward exiled or executed. In the remaking of the Chinese republics he has been a powerful factor, but like too many of his countrymen, he has been motivated by selfishness and desire for personal power. The curse of China under both the empire and the republic has been the graft of high officials, the petty thievery of underlings in the government, the failure to produce a great, unselfish leader. Sun Yat Sen had his opportunity once but the hour passed and he failed.

Let it be said of Billy Sunday that he never did a harmful thing nor started any man on the downward path. He preached as he played ball, on the square, and he was a good ball player and became a greater preacher.

An exacting man is never satisfied with himself.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

FOR THE DAY.

Let me go through the day
With kindly thought for all;
To live, to work, to play,
And with the night recall
The journey and its care
And find no hatred there.

Let me come home at night
Clear-eyed and untroubled,
Still clinging to the right,
My record undefamed;
Let not my conscience see
The marks of shame on me.

Let me not, mad for gain,
Or pomp or place or pride,
Cause others needless pain
Or thrust the weak aside; Let no one say I've been Cruel or base or mean.

Whatever may befall
To me throughout the day,
Let me come through it all Fair as I start away;
Let me when night brings rest,
Know that I've done my best.

HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1924.

Astrologers read this as a day unfavorable for many undertakings. While Neptune is in benefic aspect early in the morning, Uranus and Saturn are adverse later.

It is a day in which to exercise special caution in making investments, especially those in which real estate is involved.

While there is a risk making for clearness of vision and alertness of mind danger is probable from unwarranted optimism.

Again the stars appear to presage new discoveries and growth in certain fields.

Although it is Friday good luck should attend those who put out to sea, for they are likely to make voyages attended by success.

Criticism and suspicion where public men are concerned will continue to be marked all day.

Old traditions will be upset as never before in politics, religious and social observances, it is propheesied.

There is a threatening sign for labor, and certainly much industrial discontent will be manifested.

The problem of unemployment will come much into the consideration of press and pulpit.

During this away it is well to guard against irritability or any form of thought or action indicating control.

The planetary government presages increase of mental vagaries on the part of the people.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a changeable and eventful year. If born late in the day they are likely to experience extremes of success and disappointment.

Children born on this day probably will be very successful in all their undertakings. These subjects of Taurus have power, purpose, self reliance and resourcefulness as a general thing.

Tubercular infections are almost always acquired in early youth, usually from some infected adult who is careless or indifferent about his infection.

It's not your caddy, when you fuss;
It's not your slice that makes you sore;
It's what you eat that makes you fuss
And puts three figures in your score.

X-Ray pictures of the chests of children who do not gain weight as they should and who run slight afternoon temperatures, often reveal tuberculosis in the first stage.

We, as a nation, can not hope to prosper permanently as long as children and the mothers who bear them are compelled to labor long hours for a pittance that holds naught but soul and body together.

Oh, sleep in the open,
Pom winter 'til fall;
For a cot on the porch
Beats a bed'n the hall.

It's now the time of year we get our money just changed into wanderlust.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

HOME PREVENTION OF RESPIRATORY INFECTIONS

The official bureau of health in the government administration in the United States is a subsidiary bureau of the treasury department—health being one of the most important of the public health service. In the official bulletin of the public health service called public health reports there was published Nov. 3, 1923, the following:

Home Nursing of Pneumonia Cases.
"The apparent increasing prevalence of respiratory infections calls for the more general employment of practical measures of prevention. The following extract of an article on this subject which appeared in the Medical Officer of Sept. 23, 1923, is timely and worthy of general attention for the guidance of laymen in the precautions to be taken in the home and sick room to prevent the development of secondary cases:

Pneumonia is an Infectious Disease.
It is caught from another person who has the disease.
It is spread by means of sputum and discharge from the nose.
What to Do When Pneumonia is Prevalent

Avoid crowded and ill ventilated rooms.
Avoid fatigue, chills, and unnecessary exposure.
Avoid alcoholic excess.
Keep fit.

Gargling and nose washing night and morning are useful measures. A suitable solution is made by mixing one teaspoonful of common salt with a pint of warm water and adding sufficient crystals of potassiumate of potash to give it a pink color.

What to Do When Nursing a Case of Pneumonia

The patient should have a separate room, if possible, and that it has a sunny aspect. Remove unnecessary furniture and keep the room well ventilated and clean.

Discharges from the sputum and discharges from the nose are highly infectious, either directly by the acts of coughing, sneezing, and talking or indirectly by the soiling of linens, handkerchiefs, cups, spoons, or the hands of the attendant nurse. Therefore, to destroy the germs of infection, it is necessary to collect and destroy the sputum and all other containing a strong solution of chloride of lime or a 10 per cent solution of compound creosol solution in water (one part creosol to nine parts of water) can be used for the patient's discharges. Handkerchiefs should be put into a 5 per cent solution of compound creosol solution in water (one part compound creosol solution in 19 parts of water). Tablespoons of compound creosol solution in a pint of water would make about 5 per cent solution. Old clean rags or paper handkerchiefs are useful because they can be promptly burned.

The patient should be kept clean, face and hands should be frequently washed, as these soon get contaminated.

I have quoted all these at length because it represents the present practice. Although the public health service article started out to talk

Q. How many students does Harvard allow in its freshman class?
C. H.

A. Harvard university gave notice on March 4 that future freshman classes will not exceed 1,000.

Q. What caused the fall of the Lloyd George cabinet?
R. H.

A. The fall of the Lloyd George cabinet was due to the Dardanelles crisis. Lloyd George had misadven-tured the resources of Great Britain into a course which separated France and England and led to the withdrawal of the French troops from the neutral zone of the Dardanelles.

The real reason for the cabinet falling was the fact that Lloyd George was absolutely alone in the face of the victorious advancing Turkish armies and it was only with difficulty that he was able to hold on.

Q. What is the largest fresh water spring in the United States?
L. W. H.

A. The National Geographic society says it is impossible to state exactly which fresh water spring is the largest in the United States since springs fluctuate in their discharge and it is also the question of considering a group of springs situated collectively. Among the largest fresh water springs in the United States are the Thousand Springs and the Maad Springs, both of which are in Idaho. One of these springs would supply the city of New York with water. Silver Springs in Florida are also among the largest fresh water springs in the United States.

Q. What is a catanzol survey?
W. O. T.

A. It is a topographical survey in which the various artificial and natural objects are denoted by exact actual instead of being exaggerated for the sake of clearness, as is often done in ordinary topographic maps.

The Four Stragglers

By FRANK L. PACKARD

Captain Francis Newcombe, ex-officer in the great war, who ranks into society, but who is really a shadowy figure of underworld, and in charge of various big steals that have set London agog.

RUSSELL, a valet, who had done some big thefts on his own account, and who is now in the hands of the law.

THE FOURTH STRAGGLER, who hears the crooks agree to combine after the armistice, and who disappears.

POLLY WICKES, a flower-girl, whom Newcombe has adopted and sent to America to a finishing school, with the hope of making her a countess of the best before he leaves England, after executing some big job.

DORA MARLIN, daughter of an eccentric millionaire, and her quest for a big show place on the Florida Keys, where.

MR. MARLIN, the mad magnate, has been more than half a million dollars, the extent of which Newcombe learns inadvertently from his valet.

HOWARD LOCKE, son of a big business man, who takes Newcombe and Russell to Florida on his yacht. He falls in love with Polly.

Captain Francis Newcombe crept quietly along the hall now. Russell's room, thanks to the hospitable thoughtfulness of Miss Marlin, in order that the man might be nearer at hand and therefore the better able to serve his "master," was not in the servants' quarters, but was at the extreme end of the hall here just at the head of the stairs. Captain Francis Newcombe's hand felt along the wall to guide him in the darkness. He had no desire to stumble over anything and arouse anybody; but he had not forgotten that Polly was probably lying wide awake. The only one to be aroused was Russell—and that very quietly. Russell was a professional criminal, not a particularly clever one, but possessed where a question of self-preservation was concerned, of a certain cunning born of his hazardous career, a cunning that was not to be ignored. Cornered here in his room, for instance, Russell, though quite well aware that Captain Francis Newcombe would have no more hesitation about putting an end to him than an end to an obnoxious fly, would be equally well aware that here in the house he was possessed of a defense that rendered

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

EATING AT TABLE

There seems to be a very general conclusion that after a baby has passed the first year safely, one can look forward during the second year to his having a place at the family table and eating "table food." From the time the baby is able to sit up at all and can take anything other than his milk the family is eager to press on him the delicacies of their table, expecting it will please the baby as much as it does the family.

The indication for three meals a day, which is undoubtedly the best step toward eating with the family, is when the baby shows a lack of appetite on four meals daily. So long as he comes to each of his four meals with an appetite there is no reason to change this. Baby, even in the second and third year, may still be fed four times daily with benefit, the big meal coming at noon, breakfast about 7:30, a glass of milk at 4 and a light meal at 6 or 7. The baby may still be on the schedule at 6, 10, 2 and 6. It is a matter of little difference which one of these schedules is followed, but it usually means that the baby will be having his meals separately.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

TOO YOUNG

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 15 and am considered fair looking. This is a boy with whom I have been going for a while. He is 19. He wants me to go with him "steady" and he will not go with any other girls. I told him I was too young for "steady company" but he said I wasn't and he would soon be back for his answer. He said that if he went with a girl he didn't want every one else to go with her. But I consider myself entirely too young. I will tell him to wait until I am 18, but mostly in a "bunch." I want him to have other girl friends and I want boy friends.

He has given me a ring, just for friendship, should I keep it or give it back? He wanted it to be a remembrance of him.

Is it all right for me to go to shows and dances with other boys? There are always more boys and girls who go along.

Should I go with more than one, or should I keep this friend as a "steady"?

Is a ring binding, or is a girl free from a man as long as she is not engaged?

You are very much too young to have "steady company." Tell the boy that you have no intention of going with "every one," but you do want to have more than one friend. Unless he will go with you as a friend and nothing more, I would advise you to give him up. It is in bad taste to accept jewelry from a man unless you are engaged to him. You should not have taken the ring in the first place. Now that you have accepted it, however, misanthropy would probably arise if you tried to give it back without some cause. Keep it as long as the boy remembers it was given "just for friendship," but if he demands more than friendship, give back the ring and say that under the circumstances you feel you cannot keep it. I think you are too young to go to shows and dances with boys. Of course I know that a lot of 15 year old girls go, but nevertheless I believe them to be too young. A girl is free from a man as long as she is not betrothed. But when she accepts a ring as a gift she puts herself under obligation to him. It is much better to be entirely free and not the recipient of jewelry.

DESERTED BY HUSBAND

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 25 and have been married three years. I married a man who seemed to care for me. We never had a cross word while we were going together. We did not go to housekeeping. He stayed with me three months and then he walked out and left me. He has never come back. I have received one letter from him since he has been away and he wrote that he cared something for me.

I don't know the reason why he left me, for I never did anything to cause him to leave. I can't forget him and I still love him.

What would be the best thing for me to do?

There isn't much you can do except to make the best of things as they are and trust that in time your husband will return. Make every effort to be contented and happy, because your husband is far more apt to return. But if you grieve and lose interest in life he will not be tempted to make his home with you again. In case he does return it will be much better if you and he can go to housekeeping.

BROWN EYES: The girl should tell the boy that she has enjoyed the evening. If she hasn't it would be better to thank him for taking her, why not choose a negative answer? A girl should never ask a boy if he likes her.

Beauty Chats

BY EDNA KENT FORBES

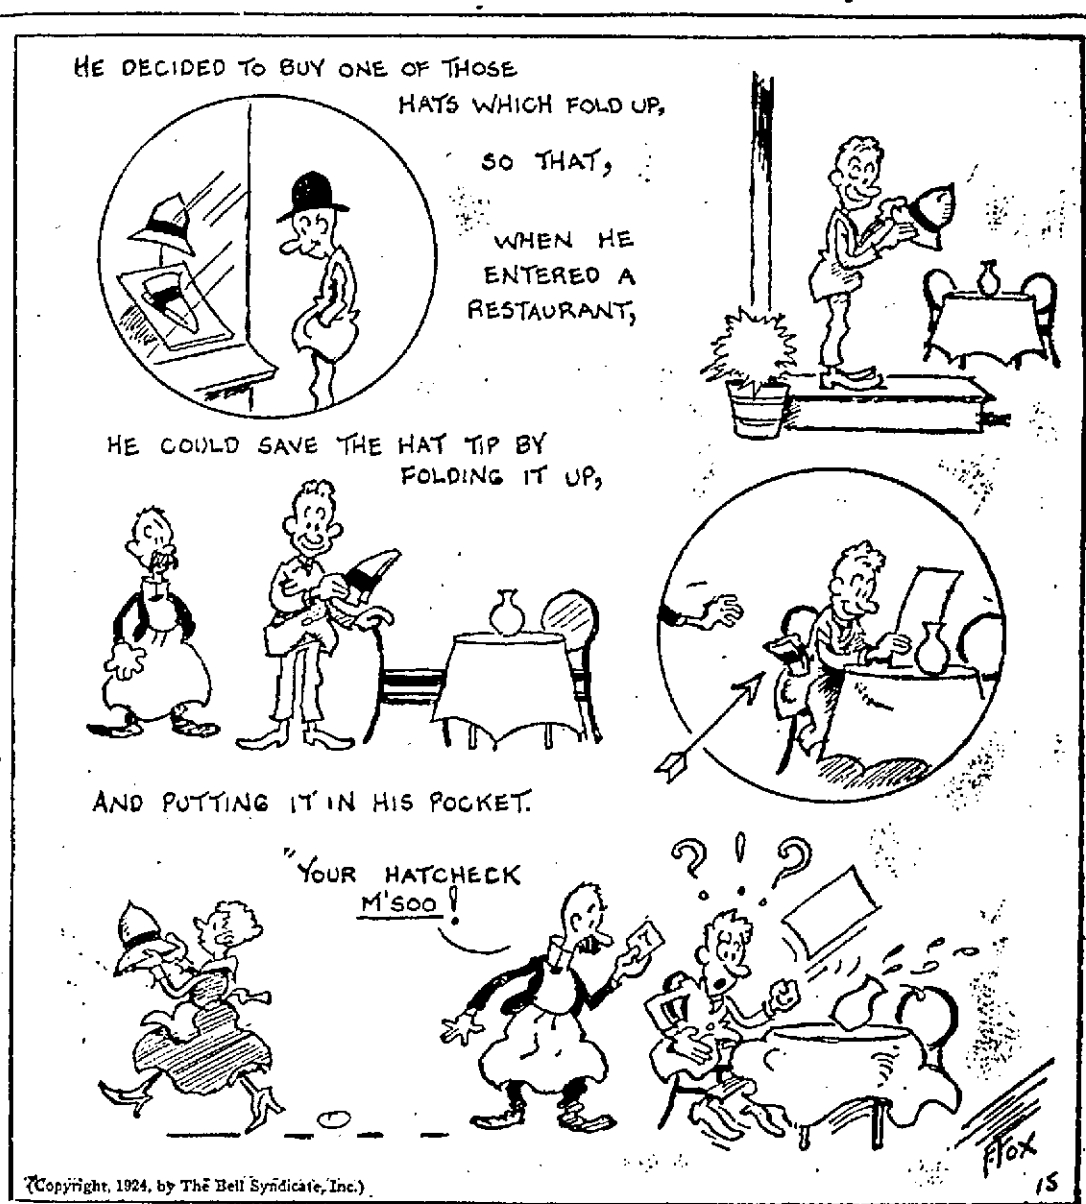

ON BEAUTY CULTURE

One of my readers, who has a suspicion of being a "beauty" writer, has asked me if I really believe in the value of growing beautiful by artificial methods. Alas, she must not send me her address, so I must answer here. We have been told that "beauty" is a good appearance. We don't deliberately choose an unbecoming dress or deliberately neglect to renew one that has worn out, so why not choose a healthy, natural, and to go back further, that delightful, somewhat naughty, Roman poet Ovid, born 43 B.C., mentions cold cream, hair dye, rouge, cosmetics, false hair and all the rest of the feminine paraphernalia for keeping young and trying to stay good looking.

As for being as nature made us—the cannibal women are more as nature made them than we are civilized. We are not, doubt, but we could scarcely call them attractive. Some of them smear their hair with what-

Your druggist has it and recommends it, as do reliable physicians everywhere you go. One large bottle will usually work wonders—your hair looks better, feel better and BE better.

Remember the name and refuse anything else.

Soap should be used very carefully. If you want to keep your hair looking its best, many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulford's coconut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

HUSBAND SAID WHY NOT TRY IT

Wife Said She Would. Result, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong

East Hardwick, Vermont.—"Last winter I was not able to do any work at all. I had backache, headache, and was sick all the time for six months. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers, and my husband said to me, 'Why don't you try it?' So I said I would, and he went and got me a dozen bottles. It has done me more good than I can ever tell, and my friends say, 'What have you done to yourself?' You look so well. I tell them it is the Vegetable Compound that makes me so well and strong. There is no use to suffer with backache and pains. I will tell you one what it has done for me. Mrs. Fred. Pinnis, Route No. 2, E. Hardwick, Vermont.

NOT COSTING A PENNY

A canny old Scot had occasion for a long railroad journey. Scarcely had he become comfortably settled in a corner of the smoke car when a stranger entered and seated himself by his side. For a time there was silence between them, while from all the corners of the smoke car rose into the already heavily laden atmosphere.

The stranger, seeing a cigar in the old man's pocket, turned to him and said, "If you care to smoke, just as I am." "My man, why don't you smoke your cigar?"

The old fellow looked about cautiously before replying. "Hush, man! be whispered. 'Can you see I'm getting all this smoke free?'"—Exchange.

A "spit attendant" in a popular London restaurant has just retired after 45 years' service. For nearly every day during this long period he roasted 35 saddles of mutton, 16 beef sirloins, and 16 loins of pork—nearly a million joints in all.

Good-bye, sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelling feet, tired feet.

Good-bye, corns, calluses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "TIZ" is magical, acts right off. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. Use "TIZ" and forget your foot misery. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel. A day's cure but a box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.

NEW WATERWAY ACROSS THE STATE

Nine-Foot Channel from Mississippi to Lakes Has New Life.

By HANCOCK N. TIMMONS.
WISCONSIN—Wisconsin members of congress today saw a long cherished dream close to realization—a nine foot waterway across the state from Green Bay to the Mississippi river.

A preliminary survey for such a project by the board of army engineers is provided for in a bill reported to the house of representatives. The survey would be of the Fox river and connecting waters from Green Bay to Portage; the Portage Canal, and thence up the Wisconsin river to the Mississippi.

This ambitious authorization bill is of the highest importance to Wisconsin for in addition to the nine-foot waterway, a survey of the richest sections of the state it also provides for a survey of two rivers harbor; Highells harbor on Lake Winnebago; a survey of Lake Winnebago, a survey of Lake Koshong, and a survey of Lake Kegonsa. It also provides for a view to widening and straightening the outer channel and of Oconto harbor, with a view to providing a depth of 18 feet. It also provides for the adoption of the Muskegon, Mich., harbor, which has already been surveyed and the beginning of work there which will cost $1,440,000 to complete.

Through Many Counties.
The nine foot waterway, if the survey shows it feasible, would cut through Brown, Outagamie, Winnebago, Green, Green Lake, Columbia, Dane, Iowa, Richland, Grant and Crawford counties. It would put dozens of prosperous towns near a water outlet to the lakes. There are few richer farming sections in the world than the area which it would serve, and it would mean lower freight rates to many of these towns.

Thus, the Fox river, which rises in Columbia county, according to the plan, would be deepened almost its entire distance, or to Portage. The Wisconsin stretch, which is a fairly straight course, compared with the circuitous Fox is more than 100 miles in length.

An Exhaustive Report.
An exhaustive report on the Fox river and its tributaries by war department engineers has just been made public by the Rivers and Harbors committee, and it shows that the Fox river, which flows from the north in a northerly direction into Green Bay, its length is about 175 miles. The Wolf river, physically the main river but by designation a tributary of the Fox, rises in the central part of Forest county and flows in a southerly direction about 225 miles into the Fox, about 10 miles above Koshong Lake. Winnebago divides the Fox into two sections, known as the upper Fox and the lower Fox. The Fox system has a drainage area of about 6,450 square miles, a maximum discharge for a period of 10 days of 15,000 second feet, and a minimum discharge for the same time of about 300 second feet, and an average discharge of 1,250 second feet. The upper Fox is from 70 to 200 feet wide and has a fall at mean stage from Portage to Lake Winnebago of 30.2 feet. The lower Fox is from 300 to 500 feet wide and about 50 miles long. It has a fall of about 166 feet between Lake Winnebago and Lake Koshong, and is divided into a series of rapids. The Wolf river is from 75 to 1,000 feet wide and flows between low banks, with a gentle slope.

The project which is now proposed in the committee bill is in many ways similar to the original proposal of the Wisconsin legislature in 1876, when after the state had canalized partially the Fox river and had built 22 locks and 11 dams under a project to obtain a depth of four feet between Depue and Portage, the government assumed control of the improvement of a waterway between the Great Lakes and the Mississippi river by way of the Fox and Wisconsin rivers. The original project was modified, however, by the rivers and harbors act of 1872. The total amount spent under the original plan was $2,229,000 for new work, of which $591,161 was spent solely upon the Wisconsin river. The improvement of the Wisconsin was completed in 1887.

The existing project now under way contemplated the deepening and widening of the channel of the Fox river to Depue, seven miles above the mouth, to Portage, a total of 125 miles, to be six feet from Portage to Montello, 31 miles, the depth to be four feet, the width of the channel from Lake Winnebago to Montello to be 100 feet; also the construction and reconstruction of 27 locks and 16 dams; the construction and maintenance of harbors having depths of six feet on Lake Winnebago; and the dredging, snagging and other improvements of Wolf river from its mouth to New London, a distance of 47 miles, the depth to be four feet.

Cost Near Million.
The estimate of cost for this work revised in 1908 was $7,120,000, exclusive of amounts spent on previous projects, which of course would be much larger now with the other improvements proposed in the present bill. The latest approved estimate for annual cost of maintenance was in 1917 and was $10,000.

On the lower Fox river between Depue and Neeshabunga there are at the present time four freight and passenger wharves, which are publicly owned and open to public use, also eight coal wharves open to public use. At harbors on Lake Winnebago, other than Oshkosh, there are five wharves or landings for miscellaneous freight and passengers, which are open to public use, and in addition there are also four private wharves.

On the upper Fox river above Oshkosh, there are six public and seven private wharves, while on the Wolf river between its mouth and New London there are three public and five private wharves. The existing facilities are considered adequate for existing commerce and there is still extensive frontage available for the development of water terminals when needed. More use of existing facilities on the upper river are urged to be made in the report of the department engineers.

POLITICAL OBSERVERS TURN EYES TO OHIO, "KEY STATE"

What part will Ohio play in the coming presidential election? Because it is looked upon as the key state to the political situation, political observers are turning their eyes to the winds blowing over the Buckeye commonwealth. They are wondering which of Ohio's sons will be called upon to bear banners of the parties in the approaching campaign, for one or more of them all have prominent parts in presidential elections in 1924 both candidates were Buckeye sons. Since 1860, seven of the twelve chief executives were Ohioans. It is considered a possibility that Nicholas Longworth, representative from Cincinnati and Republican floor leader, may be picked as vice presidential candidate by the G. O. P. It is also considered a possibility for Frank B. Willis to be drafted for the part, in order to pacify that section of the Republican party out on the outs with the regulars by the forced resignation of Harry Daugherty.

Three Buckeye Democrats are among the 25 or 30 presidential possibilities, Newton D. Baker, James M. Cox and John H. Clarke. Allee Pomerene, former senator, and Gov. A. V. Donahy are looked upon as vice presidential material in the event a major candidate is not selected from Ohio's trio. Former Governor Harry L. Davis has a lot of friends who think he ought to be picked as vice presidential candidate by the G. O. P.

Madison—The state industrial commission today declined to modify working hour regulations for women employees, as requested by milk condenseries of the state. The commission announced that its previous rule will remain in effect, except that the daily and weekly limits must be reduced to the standard set by the last legislature.

Under the ruling, condenseries will be permitted to employ women employees until 7 o'clock on Saturday nights upon condition that they shall not be required to do any work on the following Sunday.

On the contention that rush seasons require extended hours of work, condenseries of the state had asked for an extended modification of state regulations.

SIX PARK SITES PROPOSED BY ELLER

New Supervisor of Janesville Makes Suggestions to Special Committee.

Interest in the purchase of county property is being shown by the special committee on finance, chairman Robert E. Snyder, Clinton, at the last meeting. The following letter was sent by Roy Eller, new Janesville county board member, to the committee chairman, Dr. C. W. Merriman, Beloit:

"I wish to call your attention to several very fine, desirable sites for county parks. I have visited these places personally, and I think you will also, and I think they are fine locations for county parks as can be found anywhere in Southern Wisconsin.

"The first, which is nearest Janesville and, of course, interests the citizens of Janesville most, is the east shore of Spring Lake pond, about six miles northeast of Janesville. There is a fine oak grove there, and there are now facilities for bathing.

"The second site near Janesville is a fine oak grove about one mile north of the Afton bridge. This will be the best of the beautiful spots in the immediate vicinity.

"There is an especially fine oak grove on Highway No. 10, a few miles east of Janesville, near the site of the Old Mill Tavern. There is also a fine location for a county park just north of the Afton bridge, just north of the Afton bridge, on the west side of the river. There is also a fine site at Charley Bluff, Lake Koshkonong, and another at Clear Lake, north of here. This latter place is especially fine for bathing.

"In checking over the vote on the proposition I find that the northern and northwestern sections of county were opposed to our park motion. Possibly if we could arrange to locate a county park in the northwestern vicinity of the county, they would be more disposed toward the purchase of Carver's Rocks. If we could persuade the county board to get aside $500 or $1,000 a year for the purchase of small tracts here and there, in a few years' time we could have a small park or two in five acres in every township in our county."

Senator Coolidge, chairman of the senate finance committee, has announced that the pending tax bill, which he vetoed on the ground that it increased the expense, he will veto the pending tax bill, if it is amended, on the ground that it does not provide the revenue required to carry on the government of the United States.

Already, Senator Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee, has announced that the pending tax bill, which he vetoed on the ground that it increased the expense, he will veto the pending tax bill, if it is amended, on the ground that it does not provide the revenue required to carry on the government of the United States.

When the Longworth bill passed the house it carried a deficit, but the treasury department suggested changes which would provide the needed revenue. The senate has in the main ignored those suggestions and made further cuts which failing to provide productive substitutes.

Many people have the idea that the questions at issue are whether the rich shall be taxed heavily, whether the big business shall escape taxes, and whether the man of smaller income shall be preferred. From the viewpoint of the treasury department, and particularly the treasury experts, no such discrimination. Big business can avoid tax levies just as investors who buy tax exempt securities. The productivity of a tax is not altogether a matter of legislation.

And the treasury experts know from experience just what business does to avoid taxes. For instance, in respect to the tax on undistributed surplus, undoubtedly would be evaded by skillful bookkeeping and it is not certain that the government can force the distribution of all profits which there is expansion to be taken care of.

It is recalled that the government by no means succeeded in collecting all that it should of the excess profits tax and that as the latter form of taxation was more and more studied, business found ways of avoiding its heavy levies. The whole question of estimating tax receipts is a complicated one, but the treasury experts have managed in the past to attain a remarkable degree of accuracy.

Apart from the failure of the senate bill to provide enough revenue, there is also some uncertainty as to the extent of government appropriation. The budget of the executive branch of the government and the budget that will have to be met when congress gets through appropriating are two different things. Congress has departed from the budget and threatens to depart still more.

In his New York speech Mr. Coolidge estimated that nearly three billions of dollars would have to be appropriated to meet the bills being pressed in congress. Most of these will not be passed but a dangerously large proportion may be pushed through at the last moment, all of which affects the revenue getting side of the government. Take, for example, the McNary tax which will require a $200,000,000 appropriation. Probably Veto It.

Mr. Coolidge will probably veto that measure if it comes to him on the ground that the government hasn't the money for that purpose, so its economy which the president has decided upon as his battle slogan, and he can get more votes in congress to support his veto that way than any other, for the excuse of lack of funds is unanswerable unless taxes are to be increased instead of reduced this year.

Three committees are working on plans for a successful meeting. Election of officers will be held May 21, and they will be installed at the annual meeting. Present officers are: Frances E. Field, president; O. L. Lathrop, vice president; DeWitt Hill, secretary; and Alice Sutton, secretary.

POLITICAL INTEREST CENTERS IN MEET

Progressive Political Action Conference Meets Sunday in Madison.

(By Associated Press.)

Madison.—Political interest in Wisconsin centers in the state conference called here for next Sunday to form the Wisconsin Conference for Progressive Political Action. Delegates from all parts of the state, representing particularly farming and labor interests, are expected to attend the meeting.

No definite program has been worked out for the conference, according to leaders of the affair here. The work will be left to the convention, and will probably resolve itself into a general discussion of political problems and issues.

One of the outstanding subjects to come undoubtedly will be the plans for a campaign in support of Senator Robert M. La Follette for president. This is one of the primary purposes of the meeting, according to Harley P. Nickerson, temporary chairman of the organization committee.

Efforts probably will be made also by a group in the conference to endorse a slate of state officials. What action will result on this proposal is questionable leaders declare, but it is generally believed that no action will be taken in this direction.

Charles J. McGowan, chairman of the Illinois state conference for progressive political action, who was scheduled to be one of the main speakers, will be unable to attend the session. Chester J. Platt, Madison member of the committee stated today. No substitute for Mr. McGowan has been named, it is said.

Called for the Sunday conference was signed by a variety of political leaders of the state, including thirty-two representatives of state organizations and labor groups. The list of signers to the call include Lieut. Gov. George F. Conings, who undoubtedly will seek support of the group in his candidacy for governor against Governor Thine.

Coming just after the meeting of the republican state central committee here tomorrow, the Sunday conference probably will attract the leaders of the republican party as well as those outside who are leading the movement for the organization of the Conference for Progressive Political Action.

Large groups of delegates to the conference are expected to be arriving in Madison Friday and Saturday.

CHICAGO.—Leaders here of the conference for progressive political action and affiliated groups who are personally active in the movement to make Senator R. M. La Follette president explained today that their activities did not commit their organizations.

The conference for progressive political action and affiliated groups will deliver official declaration of their position on a presidential candidate until the Cleveland convention on July 4, S. J. Koenigsmann, county chairman of the conference, said.

BODY OF WOMAN FOUND IN SLOUGH

La Crosse.—The body of Mrs. J. P. Rice of Wilton, who wandered away from a hospital here April 27, was found in Fall Lake slough, a half mile south of the city, by William Pfeiffer, a street car motorman. Mrs. Rice was suffering from nervous trouble and left a small baby in the hospital when she escaped.

20 FATALITIES IN COMPENSABLE CASES

Madison.—Twenty fatalities occurred among industrial accidents in Wisconsin during March in compensable cases which have been settled by the state industrial commission, the commission reported today. Indemnity benefits allowed by the commission aggregated $61,628, medical benefits $1,013, and funeral benefits $3,100.
